Dear Mrs. Dingman,

Gabrielle was absent today because when we went to the park, Gabrielle thought it was a good idea to bring a snack. I said yes because I thought any other kid will do that. Well, I thought it was. When she was eating her snack, a squirrel showed up. Then more and more squirrels showed up. Gabrielle was chased by a dozen to a million squirrels chasing after her food. I brought her back home. I let her stay home because of the "accident". Gabrielle never wants to go to the park, or even see one tiny squirrel in her lifetime ever again.
