Dear Mrs. Dingman,

You might think that Halloween is a harmless holiday, but the truth is, its not. Madison was walking up to a house with her friends to get some candy just like any other kid. Just as she was approaching the door, a 1000 pound pumpkin fell on her head and knocked her out cold. I took her to the emergency room, and the doctor said that she would wake up in about 24 hours. If she says she went to the movies or something, it's because she may still have a little bit of a concussion.
